To Our Readers:

With his feet planted firmly on the ground and his eyes fixed on the vast horizons of space, the youth of today must know the value of proper balance. No longer can he be satisfied to be a one-sided individual who confines himself to one narrow field. Instead, he must reach out for new vistas to explore, new ideas to stimulate his growth, new friends to widen his world.

Even as this book goes to press, we learn that, for the first time, man has conquered space. No longer are we earth-bound. Our spirits, like our rockets, soar at the thought of the challenge that is ours.

Here, at Lansdowne-Aldan High School, we are striving to meet this challenge. With a well-rounded program of studies and recreation, we hope to combine the culture of the past with the knowledge of the present and thus prepare ourselves for the world of the future.

To this end, we present our theme for the year — "We keep our balance in the Space age."

Sincerely,
Lahtan Staff

Balanced Living

In the Space Age

Paradox epitomizes the scientific advances of the space age. An astronaut has demonstrated a daring feat of human courage and superb technology; yet the world's stockpile of nuclear weapons ever insanely grows. The impetus of the space age has wrought new problems of determining true values amidst dazzling scientific achievements. Balanced living in the space age looms as a challenge.

The search for values is evident at Lansdowne-Aldan High School. A seriousness of purpose accompanies the studies of mathematics, science, language, business, world history, world affairs, and other subjects designed to meet the educational needs of the current era. Minor subjects contribute directly to the mental and physical health of the individual student. A member of the school orchestra playing Beethoven's Fifth Symphony is reminded of the beauty and struggles of life. Sketching a landscape as an art project helps the student to relate more directly to nature and its true values.

Extracurricular activities fulfill a twofold purpose. Sports and dances provide a recreational outlet for participants, while clubs offer members occupational preparation in addition to material studied in class.

As you leaf through the pages of the 1961 LAHIAN, you may observe the many ways in which Lansdowne-Aldan High School attempts balanced living in the space age.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Due to an apparent lack of school spirit, Student Council this year waged a campaign to promote enthusiasm in the student body. Boy cheerleaders were selected under the auspices of Student Council to lead the crowd in rousing cheers.

November was the time for the Harvest Moon Ball where the election of the Harvest Moon Queen was enthusiastically participated in by happy dancers under Student Council supervision.

The Student Council is also responsible for the Boy and Girl of the Month program.

The Athletic Association ticket drive was conducted again this year with a great deal of success. Christmas spirit was instilled as people walked by decorated homeroom doors. A prize was offered by Student Council for the most original door.

The school store is one of the business concerns supervised by Student Council.

An enjoyable Washington trip was possible because of the planning of Student Council. The evening hotel party was also organized and operated by Student Council.

The Student Council constitution was revised this year after much deliberation.

Activated by the space age, the science department has forged ahead with new equipment.

The biology department, headed by Miss Rosemary Strout and Miss Virginia Lammey, boasts new microscopes, dissecting tools and work tables. A new aquarium houses a wide variety of fish, while the newly renovated solarium accommodates a plethora of plants. New display areas and storage cabinets complete the biology suite.

New university type benches, improved service of gas, water and electricity, and a better use of space are new features displayed by chemistry and physics teachers Mr. Paul McClure, Mr. Joseph Pitt and Mrs. Ardis Dow.

A project area for people who seek additional work was provided and a hood preventing escape of poisonous gases was also installed.

The junior high department sports new facilities for group experimentation. Completely new equipment is utilized in projects.

The advanced course allowed three years of general science to be condensed into two. During this time the students absorbed a survey program of astronomy, light energy, electricity, and the fundamentals of biology, chemistry, and physics.

In this study the students were ably assisted by Mr. Bell, Mrs. Gayle How, and Mr. Lance Miller, science teachers, as well as the senior high teachers.

Mr. Paul McClure, head of the combined departments, predicts an earth-space science as a goal for the near future. One hope that has been realized is the new ninth grade biology class for those interested.

THE NEW LANGUAGE LABORATORY INCREASES INTEREST IN

G. Hanna, C. Nicolson, K. Szegda, B. Brams, J. Oliver, S. Huppman, B. Norcross, E. Graitcer, M. Carson, R. Webster listen intently to new French record.

The year 1960-61 witnessed two firsts in the language department: the conversion of room 74 into a language laboratory and the teaching of conversational French to a select group of seventh and eighth graders who, as a prerequisite, had to maintain an average of "B" or better in English during the preceding year.

The language laboratory offers an opportunity for the students to perfect pronunciation, a vital skill for a person intending to work in a country other than the continental United States. Since different areas of foreign countries often have their own dialects as in certain parts of this nation, the knowledge of all these dialects assumes importance and can be obtained by listening to recordings spotlighting them.

Due to marked advancement in many phases of modern life, the need for multilingual persons has increased. In the fields of commerce, teaching, interpreting, and ambassadorial proceedings, the call for people well acquainted with two or three languages appears greater than ever before.

Aside from opening a wider range of careers to the student of languages, new literary horizons also emerge as available to him. After a period of concentrated study, he commences the reading of several great foreign masterpieces written many years ago. The knowledge, feelings, and beautiful flowing works of famed authors who lived in past eras are imparted in this way.

The glory of Rome, "The Eternal City"; the culture of Salamanca and Barcelona, the intriguing history of France and the Sorbonne spring alive during the study of Latin, Spanish, and French. Not only grammar and literature of these nations are taught but also their cultures and customs. Knowledge of these people and their romantic languages was presented by Mrs. Regina Connors, Miss Sarah Adams, Miss Phyllis App, and Miss Susan Foster.

THROUGH STUDY AND PRACTICE

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Typing, bookkeeping, and shorthand are typical of the skills acquired by girls pursuing a business course. Business law, sales, and general business training provide boys with a broad background of achievement as a springboard to executive successes.

Modern equipment which can be easily utilized facilitates learning in commercial classrooms. The faculty makes use of instructive aids such as typewriters, recording machines, and special records.

Distributive education students discover a dual opportunity allowing them to gain practical job experience on part-time assignments while completing their high school education and necessary training.

Many commercial students find good office jobs available to them upon graduation as a result of the thorough training absorbed in high school. This knowledge prepares them to face the future with certainty.

Girls participating in the business course are encouraged to engage in extra-curricular activities aimed at further development of their skills. Typists assist the publications department in preparation of copy for the printers. Teachers call upon business students for help in duplicating material. Future Business Leaders of America club provides programs of interest to commercial students.

Academic, commercial, general, and junior high courses were taught by qualified teachers this year. Diversity in approaches to instruction combined with competence netted a high quality of education.

Teaching aids whetted the enthusiasm of students and simplified the tasks of instructors. For example, the language laboratory was utilized for students of Latin, French, and Spanish who made tapes and listened to recordings. Modern laboratory equipment also facilitated the studies of biology, chemistry, and physics pupils. Films operated by members of the audio-visual crew clarified subject material in many classes.

Speakers for social security and private insurance plans stated their respective points of view to world affairs classes. Ropes and rings ranked as two of many types of apparatus used in physical education classes. Stoves and kitchen utensils provided an opportunity for practical application of skills in home economics classes. Recordings of play readings and folk songs enlivened many English classes.

Shining above all tangible aids rose the dedication and skill of individual teachers. Instructors worked to weld the school into a well-balanced unit with high intellectual and personal achievements.

ENCOURAGE OUR ACTIVITIES

Distributive education, typing, stenography, consumer education, general business training, office training, clerical practice, bookkeeping, sales, business, law, and commercial mathematics comprised the program of business studies available to the commercial students.

Modern typewriters and other valuable business aids create a constructive atmosphere for the instruction of Miss Barbara Capece, Miss Mildred Ankeny, and Mrs. Janet Felter. Mr. Edward Kolodgie and Mr. Gerald Donmoyer also enjoy teaching business practices in the four-room business suite.

Dashing matadors and olives jump from daydreams to realistic concepts under the imaginative Spanish instruction of Miss Sarah Adams. Togas, legions, eagles, marble structures, and a great civilization are focused by the study of Latin directed by Mrs. Regina Connors. Miss Phyllis App and Miss Susan Jane Foster impress the seriousness of the Algerian problem and the gaiety of grape-crushing Frenchmen upon students of this beautiful language.

Language teachers utilize the language laboratories for record listening and student recordings. This exciting innovation in teaching procedures facilitate the detection of weak points in learning.

Mathematics, a fast-growing and rapidly changing science, ranks as a vital school subject. Mathematics curricula and methods of instruction are constantly evaluated, revised, and improved. Since mathematics is a living, growing subject, methods of instruction must grow also. Teachers concentrate on understandings, meanings, patterns, and structures instead of mere manipulative skills.

Trigonometry, solid geometry, and Algebra II constitute Mr. Howard Freeman's major areas of emphasis. Calculus, analytic geometry, and higher algebra are introduced by Mr. Freeman to advanced students. Provision of a transitional step from high school to college level mathematics is Mr. Freeman's basic concern.

Algebra II is also taught by Mrs. Gayle How in addition to basic mathematics. The job of introducing the concepts of algebra is delegated to Mrs. Pauline Edwards and Mr. Robert Dix, Algebra I instructors. Mr. Dix also covers seventh and eighth grade mathematics.

Plane geometry, the study of relationships between geometric figures, is taught by Mrs. Ester Morris. Seventh grade arithmetic, illustrated by Miss Grace Straley, and seventh and eighth grade number facts, projected by Mrs. Helen Morris, prepare students for a leap from junior high to high school mathematics. Mr. Anthony Soscia handles ninth and tenth grade general mathematics.

Seventh grade science, the basis on which advanced sciences are studied, was effectively taught by Mrs. Gayle How, Mr. John Bell, Mr. Joseph Pitt, and Miss Virginia Lammey. Eighth grade students were introduced to elementary biology, chemistry, and physics. Mr. Bell and Mr. Lance Miller were charged with this responsibility.

Biology, the study of animal and plant life, was handled by Miss Rosemary Strout and Miss Virginia Lammey. Chemistry was ably taught by Mr. Paul McClure. Twelfth grade students under Mr. Pitt were introduced to physics, the science of motion.

Guided by faculty sponsors Mrs. Jean Connors and Mrs. Mary Bailey, publications department created the Garnet and Gray, school newspaper, and LAHIAN, school yearbook.

"Balanced Living in the Space Age" stimulated thought as a yearbook theme. Gathering advertising subscriptions, pasting senior pictures, and assembling layouts constituted a few of the numerous duties plaguing the LAHIAN staff.

SHOP CENTERS ON COMPLETION OF PROJECTS

The manual arts, woodshop and metalshop open doors to the magic worlds of an enjoyable hobby or a future occupation. As a hobby, handicrafts offer many hours of happy recreation and serve a useful purpose. Wood and metal skills can pave a way to a fascinating career.

Boys working in the woodshop or metalshop learn to transfer their ideas to scale plans and finally to finished products. Projects touch upon the possible careers of architecture, engineering, or blueprinting in the mechanical drawing area. Cabinet making, wood turning and finishing may lead to future occupations in this field. Machine operators, welders, and jewelery makers were some of the vocations explored in the metal shop area. In order to obtain practical experience, the mechanical drawing room offers simple or complex drawing of projects with pencils, rulers, or erasers.

These enthusiastic lads eagerly learn from Mr. Clarence Preitz, Mr. Joseph Pastelak, and Mr. William Kabakjian, instructors, in the woodshop, metalshop, and mechanical drawing room, respectively.

LEARNING ABOUT DOMESTIC ARTS

The sunshine-filled rooms of the home economics suite set the scene for much activity this year. Under the auspices of Miss Virginia Briner and Mrs. S. Emily Vincent, the department has flourished.

Girls have gained a better knowledge of nutrition and meal planning from the cooking course. They have also absorbed a store of helpful hints that will be beneficial in preparing appetizing meals.

The boys, too, have derived great benefits and pleasures from kitchen-fiddling. A male invasion of the kitchen occurred twice weekly when pies, cakes, vegetable platters, and other delicacies were concocted.

In the sewing section, freshman girls fashioned blouses and juniors stitched shirtwaists. Senior girls learned the various aspects of tailoring as they painstakingly worked on making suits or sheaths.

Child care and interior decoration were initiated into the home economics curriculum this year by Miss Briner and Mrs. Vincent. The energetic students designed a room from the floor plan up and collected materials and pamphlets for booklets.

The planning and preparing of several luncheons has constituted another responsibility of the home economics department.

This year the girls studied foreign foods with the seniors preparing an international luncheon. French, Italian, and Chinese cuisine highlighted the menu. Attractive booklets were made representing various countries and were displayed in the showcase.

During evaluation, Boys' Chef Club served a delicious steak dinner to the evaluators and the administration. The entire department worked industrially to prepare the meal, and the boys served the laden plates.

An annual concert in conjunction with the high school band and tenth grade chorus and the background for the school production of "Plain and Fancy" provided by a selected orchestra highlighted the performances of the junior and senior high music makers this year.

The senior Commencement program, a junior and a senior high assembly, and the annual trip to the Belmont Avenue Home in Philadelphia constituted other activities on the orchestra's agenda.

Orchestra members have also displayed their individual talents. In the South-Eastern District Orchestra try-outs Seniors Roy Mann and Susan Megraw both placed in the violin section. Roy as concertmaster and Susan winning third chair. Sophomore Charlotte Kempton lent her talents to the cello section of South-Eastern District Orchestra.

Roy Mann was also selected for the All-Eastern Orchestra performing in Washington, D. C., on January 13-16. Region 3 State Orchestra was sparked on February 9-11 by both Roy Mann and Sue Megraw.

Garnet and gray-clad bandsters lent support to football players and roused the cheering in the stands with their enthusiastic playing. Each half-time found blowers, tooters, and tappers entertaining the observers with varied marching techniques.

The band's biggest project during the recent year was their drive to sell Christmas cards. Each member of the band assumed responsibility for a box of cards. The worthwhile project netted large profits.

The purpose of the drive was directed at furnishing the band members with new uniforms. The band reached its quota and members look forward to selecting and donning new uniforms starting with the 1961-1962 season.

Representation in state and district bands testified to the band's musical ability. Try-outs led to selection by a panel of musicians. Those selected to attend district band in April were Doug Collins, Karen Myers, Jim Bennett, and Leroy Gordon. "Having been chosen on the basis of rigid auditions, district band members represent the cream of the crop of the high school musicians in southeastern Pennsylvania. I am happy that four of our students are representing Lansdowne Aldan High School in this impressive assemblage of student musicians," commented Mr. Rizzo.

High on the list of activities was the annual band, orchestra and tenth grade chorus concert which was held on Friday, April 14. The band also highlighted a senior high assembly with a foot stamping show.

J. Dunlap, B. Van Dexter, and B. Yocum form a musical trio accompanied by M. Bailey at the piano.

Mr. Corbin leads a music class.

MIRTH AND MELODY HIGHLIGHT

Hours of work fashioned the show, headed by Mr. Don Corbin and Mr. H. Donn McCafferty, co-directors, with the help of Mr. Gerald Donmoyer and Senior Judy Esterline. The cast of Judy Skillen, Bill Miller, Ken Goode, Jim Doyle, Rosemary Lyman, Chris Gentile, Don Sinclair, Becky Rumberger, and Pat Pope was chosen early in the year. Practices were attended on Saturdays and after school. An Amish chorus and chorale ensemble added their voices while ballet and carnival dancers, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Benham, completed the stage setting.

The story of Plain and Fancy concerns a young New Yorker and his sophisticated girl friend who drive to Amish country to sell a piece of property he had inherited but has never seen. In this town of Bird-in-Hand they find themselves in a land of quaint customs, stern morals, and "Pennsylvania Dutch" English. They run across a romance or two among the young generation of Amish and manage to mediate so that everybody is in love with the right party at the end.

Eric Roth and the stage crew were in charge of scenery changes. One scene showed the Amish people hard at work preparing for a wedding to the tune of 'Plenty of Pennsylvania."

Katie (J. Skillen) explains her feelings to Peter (K. Goode) in "Young and Foolish."

Papa Yoder (B. Miller) flanked by Amishmen B. Oberdorf, C. Gentile, and B. Arms sings "Plain We Live."

"PLAIN AND FANCY"

Hilda (R. Lyman), Dan (D. Sinclair) and Papa Yoder (Bill Miller) rejoice at the barn raising.

The Amish headed by Papa Yoder (B. Miller) explain their creed in "Plain We Live."

Dan (D. Sinclair) offers to help Ruth (P. Pope) unpack at the Miller farm.

"And I present to you 'The Judson Barry Story' by Moss Hart and James Michener," K. Goode tells R. Spencer.

"Spray guns. Made 'em myself," R. Spencer tells T. Bell.

"MR. BARRY'S ETCHINGS" HOLDS

"So while you have fun in prison, four thousand people will be getting it in the neck." S. Harrison reminds R. Spencer.

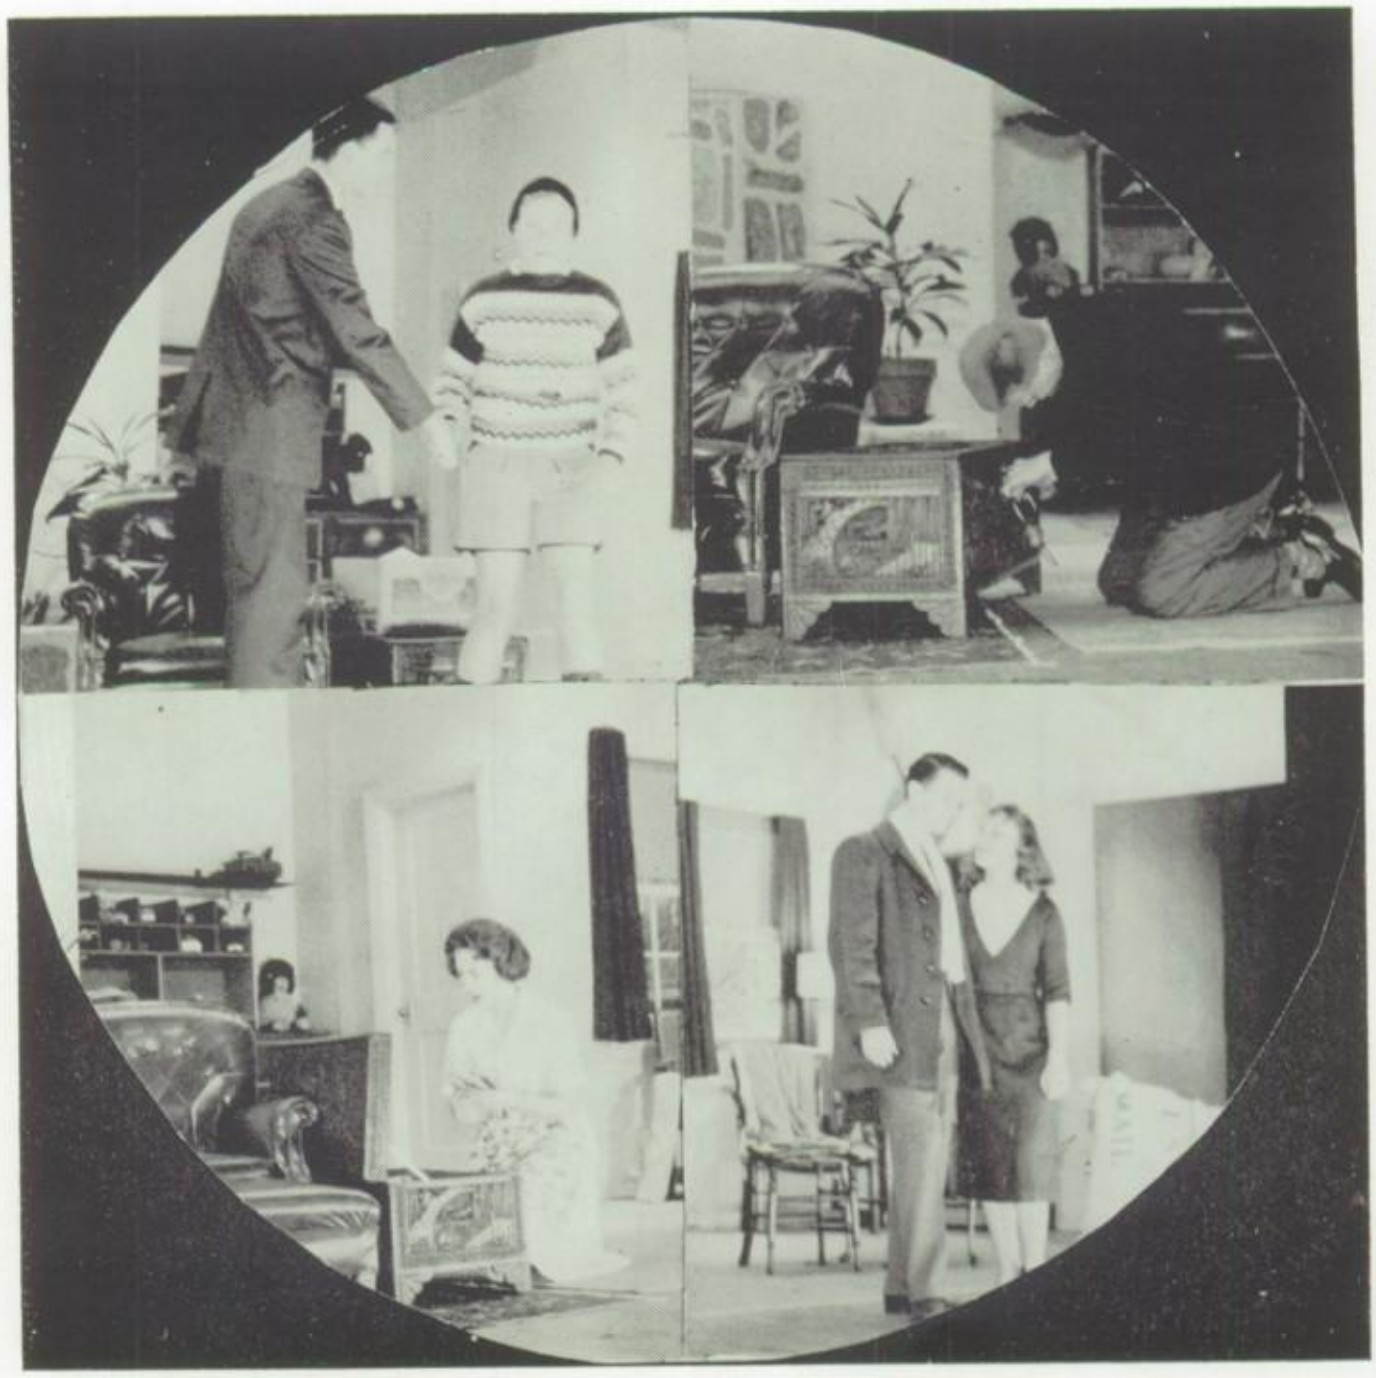
"You wicked woman! You don't believe her, do you Crosby?" asks K. Reith.

J. Doyle makes up for lost time with P. MacAllister.

R. Spencer, K. Reith, and J. Doyle reflect upon the problem of obtaining a pardon for R. Spencer.

"Its a phodoney, Sawbuck. The best I've ever seen," asserts J. MacNamara as R. Scott scrutinizes a fifty dollar bill.

AUDIENCE WITH COMICAL CAPERS



"Mr. Barry, I knew you were going to jail tomorrow, and I came to say I'm awful sorry." F. Kosel tells R. Spencer while they shake hands.

"Fifty dollar bills! Look at all those fifty dollar bills!" utters an astonished K. Reith.

BOWLING CLUB

Pin-knocking enthusiasts discovered a healthy method of casting off tensions in a pressure-filled civilization at the Lansdowne Bowling Alley every Wednesday and Thursday afternoon.

Under the watchful eye of Mr. Robert Dix, club sponsor, the keglers participated in an intramural program. Three games plus the rental of a bowling ball and a pair of shoes cost the teenage bowler a minimum fee. Although there were no elected officers, each member assumed an active part in maintaining a high spirit of energy and fun.

A "200" and a "125" club were established to give potential stars special recognition for rolling good scores.

DANCE BAND

Through utilization of the music department's tape recorder a set of numbers were recorded by the band. Evaluation within a framework of constructive criticism resulted from play-backs.

Compared to activities of the Dance Band in other years, this year's group has attained no opportunity to show its talents. Quips Mr. Joseph Rizzo, faculty adviser to Dance Band, "It's either a feast or famine. Some years we have to turn down requests; other years no one wants us!"

Dance Band music offers a wide variety of styles and moods in order to please the slow, dreamy dancer as well as the fast-moving cha-cha and mambo enthusiast.

JUNIOR CLASSICAL LEAGUE

Junior Classical League links Lansdowne-Aldan High School to a nationwide network of clubs dedicated to encouraging the study of Latin. Under the leadership of Consul Tim Welsh, Pro-consul Nancy Woods, Scriba Suzanne Skillen, and Quaestor Mary Jo Esterline, JCL carried on a diversified program of activities.

Highlights included the showing of European travel pictures by Mr. Stanley Kleckner, assistant principal, and the traditional initiation ceremony staged in February.

The club also sponsored a Roman-style Christmas Banquet complete with togas. The movie "Spartacus" was viewed by the Latin enthusiasts.

A discussion of some phase of Roman life, followed by refreshments, constituted business covered at monthly JCL meetings.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Character, honor, scholarship, and service determined the selection of outstanding juniors and seniors to National Honor Society ranks in March.

Heading the National Honor Society was President Linda Kates. Other officers included Bill Miller, vice-president; Marilyn Pyle, secretary, and Joan Gallagher, treasurer.

Faculty sponsor Mrs. Esther Morris assumed much responsibility. Dramatics instructor Mrs. Virginia Christ helped with plans for the spring installation program.

A guest speaker was invited to the installation assembly and to the tea following the assembly for the members and their parents.

CLUBS HELP TO BROADEN OUR HORIZONS

LAB ASSISTANTS

The lab assistants devoted several periods per week to serving the science department. These upperclassmen were selected by their respective instructors to aid in the laboratory.

Preparing the lab ranked as the main duty of the lab assistant. Aiding confused students in interpretation of the mechanics and theory of an experiment constituted a secondary task.

Preparing solutions, cleaning special equipment, inspecting student apparatus, issuing new equipment, and maintaining order in the lab in the instructor's absence form part of a lab assistant's routine.

New science laboratories installed over the summer increased the responsibilities of this hardy crew.

TRI-HI-Y

Service functions and extending help to others constituted the activities of Tri-Hi-Y, an affiliated branch of the Lansdowne Community Young Men's Christian Association. Energetic members worked to raise funds for the tuberculosis, polio and Lily Day drives. In addition they collected food and gifts for a needy family at Thanksgiving, as well as contributing to the support of a child in a Tennessee orphanage.

The decoration of center hall at Thanksgiving and Christmas was another Tri-Hi-Y project. Social functions included a Christmas Pollyanna and the annual Turnabout Dance which sparkled on the night of February 18.

To augment their treasury, Tri-Hi-Yers sold mints. Part of the profit from this peddling enterprise was donated to the "Y." Tri-Hi-Y delegates were also sent to the Metropolitan Hi-Y-Tri-Hi-Y Council.

FUTURE NURSES OF AMERICA

President — Joan Davis

Lending a helping hand to potential white-capped workers, Future Nurses of America focused its emphasis on insight into facets of the nursing profession. The club, under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Dimmick, school nurse, sponsored field trips and offered nursing school brochures.

Fund raising projects effectuated by the Future Nurses augmented Welfare Drive collections for the Delaware County Home for Crippled Children. The club also worked with the Health Council in posting healthful living hints and reminders in school halls.

A rally ranked as a dynamic F.N.A. activity in October. F.N.A. representatives visited monthly open houses and teas organized by nursing schools in the Delaware County area. The information gleaned at these social events was reported to members at weekly meetings.

AUDIO-VISUAL CLUB

President Kenneth Cassidy and faculty adviser Mr. Paul McClure headed an enthusiastic Audio-Visual Club crew.

Wielding responsibility for the functioning of the public address system at dances, assemblies, and sports events, the mechanically-minded team also flashed films from movie projectors and spun rocking discs at record hops. Salaries are alloted for operation of the movie projector and performance of audio-visual functions at times other than a school day.

Audio-Visual Club membership is open to all interested seventh to twelfth grade boys with a scholastic average of "C" or better.

VARIETY OF INTEREST INCREASES MENTAL GROWTH

FOOTBALL CLUB

Under the direction of Mr. Raymond Spafford, the Football Club met weekly on Wednesday nights beginning in the latter part of April. The club provided aid for any boy from ninth grade to eleventh grade anticipating playing football the following year.

Ninth grade boys were introduced to the plays and situations of playing high school football. Films of previous games and college football films were shown and discussed. Football tactics and plays were reviewed and new ones discussed.

From these gatherings the boys learned of their mistakes, helping them to learn of new ideas for the following season.

Football enthusiasts will attend football camp in the summer. Money for the camp was raised through open houses during the school year.

WOODSHOP CLUB

Buzzing saws, pounding hammers, and clanking machinery marked the efforts of male manual students on Wednesday nights in room 16. Development of creativity ranked as the goal of the Woodshop Club.

Mr. Clarence Preitz, woodshop instructor, served as faculty adviser. President Bob Corson, Vice-President John Davis, and Treasurer Bob Wheeler handled organizational affairs.

Development of a useful hobby rates as a high incentive for wood-splitting. The pride and satisfaction of handicraft motivates continued woodworking efforts among members.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

President — Diane Manz
Vice-President — Beth Habecker
Secretary — Pat Test
Treasurer — Nancy Craven

Under the guidance and leadership of Mrs. Pauline Edwards, faculty advisor, the Future Teachers of America Club engaged in many worthwhile activities. A trip to West Chester College for an F.T.A. conference provided a dynamic and informative commencement of the year's activities.

Club members collected toys for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and transported their results to the Philadelphia center at Christmas. Helping and assisting teachers at the Ardmore and Highland Avenue schools served as an integral part of the club program.

These experiences enabled the prospective instructors to gain a broader knowledge of the teaching profession.

FRENCH CLUB

Parlez-vous francais? Those who do were eligible for membership in the French Club. This year the French Club attained a first-hand taste of French culture by viewing Tartuffe, a famous play by Moliere presented by the Comedie Francaise at the Academy of Music. An enthused representation of the French Club attended the gala event.

At a Christmas party French enthusiasts enjoyed the many and varied customs of the season. Plans for the spring included dining at a French restaurant and visiting the Rodin Museum in Philadelphia. This is the most complete museum in the United States of the works of this great French sculptor.

A knowledge of the culture as well as the language of France ranked as a goal of the French Club.

MATH CLUB

Elementary computing machines utilizing the binary number system provided the foundation of a project on which industrious potential mathematics majors labored at weekly Monday Math Club meetings.

The completing of a probability board helpful in determining some of the theories of chance and probability ranked as the source of another project. The structure of algebra and the different number systems emerged as a lively discussion topic.

The area of programming lesson materials in mathematics for use with an elementary teaching machine now under construction resulted in another club discussion.

Mr. Howard Freeman, teacher of Algebra II, trigonometry, solid geometry and introductory concepts of calculus, analytic geometry, and higher algebra, coordinated the activities of the group.

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA

Guest speakers shedding light on opportunities for commercial graduates in various businesses and corporations provided meetings of the Future Business Leaders of America with a stimulating note.

F.B.L.A. sponsored gala dances and fun-packed skating parties to augment the club treasury. Contests and conventions for future business leaders hosted F.B.L.A. competition.

President Betty Haynie and faculty adviser Mrs. Janet Felter led the business-headed crew in formulating and carrying out activity plans.

A bowling party added a variety note to F.B.L.A.'s social activities. A guided tour of the Bell Telephone Company offered a means of acquainting club members with employment opportunities in communications.

A survey of alumni employment was undertaken by the club in an attempt to gain insight into available post-graduation openings.

1961 SENIORS WHIRL THROUGH THE FINAL YEAR

Senior R. Scott amuses foreign exchange student, S. Mondini, with an American joke.

Guided by Mr. Lawrence Richards, class adviser, the class of '61 stepped forth to meet the challenge of being seniors.

Dennis Zimmerman, vice-president, Joe Jackson, treasurer, Ruth Ross, recording secretary, and Margo List, corresponding secretary, aided Tom Maher, class president, in the preparation of the Christmas Dance. Titled the Snow-Ball, music-sliding emerged as the highlight of the Christmas holidays for students and alumni.

Mr. Richards

B. Barfod, Harvest Moon Queen

D. Short looks for a book in the library.

Postponed from early winter, the New York trip appeared doubly delightful in the spring. Students visited the United Nations and enjoyed a sightseeing boatride. A movie and stage show at Radio City Music Hall concluded the day's agenda.

Washington, D. C., entertained the seniors for two days. Well-planned sightseeing in the Washington area and partying at the seniors' hotel contributed to the trip's success. For the first time seniors this year were granted some free time which they could fill with their choice of activities. Offered choices included a swimming party and a trip to an amusement park.

In classes seniors explored the workings of the United Nations and the works of William Shakespeare. Preparation for college and college acceptance weighed heavily on the minds of some seniors, while others prepared to face the business world. College boards and job placement tests were a major topic of senior conversations as the end of the year drew near.

The senior class remained the backbone of the Student Council. Ably directed by President Dick Spencer, the Council planned the Harvest Moon Ball where lovely senior Barbara Barfod was crowned queen. Her court included Linda Kates, Diane Manz, Joan Gallagher, and American Field Service student Silvana Mondini. In addition the Student Council supervised the management of the school store and organized a program of hall monitors.

The school year reached its peak for seniors during the weeks of the senior prom and commencement. At the prom seniors and their dates whirled dreamily to the music of Al Raymond in the ballroom of the Drake Hotel. Later they wended their way to the Alpine Inn where the Afterglow party swept them to the wee hours of the morning.

Commencement night brought seniors to the end of their high school career and to the threshhold of adult responsibilities and problems. Commencement was held in the new gymnasium instead of the auditorium to provide more room and comfort for the large class of '61. Dr. Althea Hottel, former Dean of Women at the University of Pennsylvania and United States representative to the Social Commission of the United Nations, directed some inspirational remarks to the graduates.

JUNIORS jet the

Guided by Adviser Mr. Donn McCafferty in a quest for perspective in daily affairs, energetic juniors strived for scholastic achievement and devoted themselves to varsity and junior varsity athletics, extracurricular clubs, musical projects, and the construction of the LAHIAN and the Garnet and Gray.

Many juniors took the Drexel Tests, the National Merit Scholarship Tests, and the College Board tests. They gained experience and knowledge through careful research for term papers. The gala Junior Prom ranked as the most memorable event of the year. The affair was supervised by Prom Chairman Janet Hillier.

Energetic SOPHOMORES

Class adviser Miss Fay Stofman guided hard-working sophomores through the maze of confusing high school innovations to an area of balance among their activities. Vibrant class officers Nick DiBenedictus, Larry Noble, Wendy Edmiston and Neil Facchinetti also helped pilot the group.

Sparked by outstanding athletes and scholars, the class of 1963 burst into the swing of high school activities. Tenth graders displayed talents on varsity and junior varsity squads, in band and orchestral productions, through membership in extra-curricular clubs, and through scholastic achievements.

"Oriental Interlude," the sophomore hop, capped a busy round of social activities. The fun-studded ball attracted many glowing tenth graders.

Guided by Mr. Raymond Spafford, eighth-graders were introduced to America's historic past. Enjoyment of Johnny Tremaine and Kon-Tiki highlighted their English studies. Algebra was offered to top students. Projects and reports sparked enthusiasm for science.

Members of the class of '65 lent their prowess to athletic teams, raised funds for the Welfare Drive, and participated in the annual Junior High Production.

This class has enthusiastically climbed the second rung of the ladder, thrusting its members closer to high school days.

Exuberation and sense of responsibility combined as twin partners in the pursuit of knowledge and good citizenship by seventh grade students this year.

Ably led by Mrs. Gayle How, Miss Virginia Lammey, Mr. Robert Gwinner, and many others, these young scholars enjoyed their first taste of high school academic work. In addition to gaining knowledge from their regular subjects, junior high novices tackled techniques of test-taking, practiced budgeting time, accepted guidance for individual problems, and developed social relations with classmates.

These underclassmen lent their talents to extra-curricular affairs. They actively participated in junior high clubs and athletic competitions. Cheers swelled as seventh graders shouted wildly in support of senior high squads. They aided the Welfare Drive with many projects and showered their vitality on the junior high production, Fun and Frolic.

Friday nights glowed with seventh graders enthusiastically enjoying open houses in the old gym. Here they took their first steps into the social whirl of high school life.

In September, the parents of the newcomers were given a chance to meet their youngster's new teachers. Later, they had the opportunity to become better acquainted with the teachers during back-to-school night.

In a year's time the junior high pioneers learned to adjust themselves to the exciting whirl of activities and at the same time realized the responsibilities they must accept as maturing young men and women.

GRIDIRON LORDS SOAR TO LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

Scoring nine wins while suffering only one loss, the football team rolled to its most successful season since 1918. Although rated merely as a mediocre team in pre-season predictions, the Lords combined teamwork and determination to come out in a first place tie with Radnor for the Section III title.

The highlight of a highly successful season was L-A's complete romp over a traditional rival, Swarthmore. In the annual Thanksgiving Day classic the Lords swamped Swarthmore to the tune of 57-0.

The Lords boasted many outstanding players who received special recognition for their valuable contributions. Guard Bill Sharpe became the first L-A athlete ever named to the All-Scholastic team. End Jack MacMullan and halfback Pete DiDonato also received Honorable Mention on the All-Scholastic team. MacMullan and DiDonato nabbed first string spots on the All-Delco team, with Sharpe on the second team and Lou Padula and Andy Loomis receiving Honorable Mention.

The All-East Delco team claimed thirteen Lords. The first team included MacMullan, Sharpe, Di-

Jack MacMullan served as the team captain.

Bob McDougall, team place-kicker, deserves special mention as one of the factors in the Lords' overall success. The story of how Bob overcame his sight handicap set an example constituting one of the forces behind the team's driving will to win. Bob's achievement was recognized by others, and he received the Delaware County Coaches Association's "Most Courageous Athlete" award.

Much of the credit for the team's performance goes to Coach Ray Spafford and his assistants, Anthony Soscia and Don Cornman. Coach Spafford received The News of Delaware County's "Coach of the Year" award in honor of his vital part in guiding the Lords to victory.

"Too bad Jack"

Coached by Mr. William Radcliffe and Mr. Forrest Mutter, Lansdowne-Aldan's varsity and junior varsity basketball squads faced a demanding seventeen game season.

Although stalwart Lou Padula was handicapped by a leg injury, the varsity roundballers displayed the true meaning of hustle and compiled a commendable nine-eight overall record. Radcliffe's charges tied Nether Providence for third place in Section III with a seven-five league mark.

Senior guard Tom Maxwell copped third place in the Section III scoring derby with 265 points. Jack MacMullan, second high scorer, John Wentzel, best foul shooter, and Ron Miller, high rebound man, were other prominent seniors on the quintet. Juniors Al Parsons and Tom Loomis also sparked the team with some nifty shooting.

Tom Maxwell was named by the News of Delaware County to the First Team of their All East Delco Basketball Squad and also garnered the Most Valuable Play award. John Wentzel won the Foul Shooting Trophy.

Husky Matmen Pin Opponents Down

To Achieve a Series of Successes

The matmen started off the '61 season with a slow start. Snapping back strongly, the squad won four straight matches. Throughout the season the team was sparked by various enthusiastic wrestlers. Dick Kinnear, Larry Van Wyk, Pete DiDinato, Tom Speers, Paul Basehore and John Florence served as the nucleus of the crew.

Although the junior varsity team managed to win five and lose three, the team racked up a good service record. Coach Soscia expects these boys to fill in the positions held by varsity matmen.

The boys placed second in the league. A few of the outstanding wrestlers in past season tourneys and sectional champs are Dick Kinnear (112 lbs.), Larry Van Wyk (133 lbs.), and Paul Basehore (heavyweight).

Without Coach Soscia's fine handling one team member, Larry Van Wyk, would have been unable to place in the regional, district, and state finals. Larry lost by a slim margin in the state contest.

Eight returning letterwinners sparked hopes of a bright season for the varsity "Garnet Stockings." As a result of a two year building program, the Lansdowne-Aldan diamond boasted an experienced team who were expected to do well. Coach Don Corman and Captain Jack MacMullan anticipated a much improved showing over last year's four-twelve record. Seniors Tom Maher, Buddy Mauger, Phil Arbolino, Bob Hunter, and Jack MacMullan plus juniors Pete DiDonato, Dave Thomas and Glenn Robinson composed the brigade of letter-winners returning to the diamond.

Jack MacMullan ranked as the diamondeers' chief pitching threat. Glenn Robinson, Paul Kreuger, and Bill Nock completed the mound corps while Phil Arbolino and King Perry were behind the plate. MacMullan also played first base while Buddy Mauger handled all the action at second base. Tom Maher held down the short stop position. They comprised a skilled, experienced infield which opponents' balls had a difficult time overcoming. Pete DiDonato supervised the hot spot. Dave Thomas and Tom Loomis nailed down two of the pasture posts while Werner Meier and Joe Austin alternated at the third outfield spot.

A strong and powerful line-up contributed many runs during the season while the pitchers allowed few hits to the opposing batters.

L-A NETMEN POST IMPROVED RECORD

The coming of spring wrought life on chalk-lined tennis courts. Daily, Mr. Gerald Donmoyer and his team headed toward the nets for a day of tough practice. Bill Miller and Dick Spencer piloted the netters as co-captains. 1961 constituted their fourth year as varsity players.

Although many novices brightened the team, the nucleus of the matchmen were seniors. The racketeers were supported by fifty percent returnees from last spring.

The league was divided into two sections, enabling the boys to compete with teams of equal size. This provided teams with improved winning chances.

Mr. Donmoyer hoped that experience would lead the servers to victory over Harriton, a difficult match.

Bill Miller captured top position for the third year, while Dick Spencer copped second for his third year also. Gary Schoener and Doug Collins grabbed third and fourth positions, respectively.

Completing the varsity line-up at first doubles were Dwight Evans and Roger Scott. Ed Lennig and Phil Graitcer took on all comers from the second doubles position.

After bowing to such perennial tennis powerhouses and larger schools as Lower Merion, Upper Darby and Haverford early in the season, the netmen rebounded to decision Marple-Newtown, Springfield, and Penncrest in succession.

The boys looked forward to the annual match with the girls' tennis team at the end of the season to determine once and for all which of the two teams was superior.

GIRLS' HOCKEY TEAM SCORES WINNING SEASON

Hard work, the will to win, and the expert coaching of Mrs. Edna Hoffman paid large dividends for the Lassies last fall.

Ably led by co-captains Ann Louise Smith and Joan Gallagher, the varsity hockey team racked up six wins, one loss, and one tie. The sticksters fell to an old rival, Springfield, in their only setback. Center forward Tangie Terrel was high scorer as the Lassies successfully fired 32 goals into the nets of their opponents. In comparison, only seven tallies were scored against goalies Jean Luisi and Mary Ann Kiedaisch.

Showing spirit and talent, the Jay-Vees won five, lost one, and tied one in an exceptional season.

SOFTBALL AND TENNIS CLAIM ATTENTION

"With training and practice, the 1961 Lassies' tennis team should give a good account of itself," commented Coach Mrs. Pauline Edwards before the season's opening.

The returning power of varsity letterwinners Estelle White and Diane Wilgard plus the potential of Seniors Regina Luisi Kathy Fowler, Pat Bailey, Harriet Dubson, and Karen Newhouse resulted in an action-packed season. After starting their eight game season with three difficult non-league games, the Lassies faced a difficult match with Springfield in May.

Under the able assistance of Coach Pauline Edwards this years girls' tennis squad completed a successful season.

Racket swingers were observed working diligently at their forehand swipes and backhand jabs nearly every afternoon on the sun-splashed courts. To earn their places on the ladder, the girls staged challenge matches among themselves. These matches continued after the formal season was initiated.

The final varsity squad was comprised of Diane Wilgard, first singles; Estelle White, second singles; Kathy Fowler, third singles; Regina Luisi and Karen Newhouse, first doubles, and Tina Hood and Pat Bailey, second doubles.

To Our Readers:

With his feet planted firmly on the ground and his eyes fixed on the horizons of space, the youth of today must know the value of proper balance. No longer can he be satisfied to be a one-sided individual who confines himself to one narrow field. Instead, he must reach out for new vistas to explore, new ideas to stimulate his growth, new friends to widen his world.

Even as this book goes to press, we learn that, for the first time, man has conquered space. No longer are we earth-bound. Our spirits, like our rockets, soar at the thought of the challenge that is ours.

Here, at Lansdowne-Aldan High School, we are striving to meet this challenge. With a well-rounded program of studies and recreation, we hope to combine the culture of the past with the knowledge of the present and thus prepare ourselves for the world of the future.

To this end, we present our theme for the year — "We keep our balance in the space age."

Sincerely,

Lahitan Staff
